THE UNIVERSITY WRITING CENTER PRESENTS VECINOS

Feb 21 • 4-6 PM • DMC 2.106

Followed by a Q&A with RTF professor Miguel Alvarez

A Bilingual Rom-Com, Written and Set in Austin

Vecinos tells the story of neighbors, brought together by proximity, but held together by something much more personal. Roberto hasn't done much changing lately, but even from his couch he's seen his neighborhood become a place he barely recognizes. When Maria moves in down the hall from him, though, Roberto has no choice but to consider the good side of change. Vecinos reminds us that no matter how easy it is to lose your identity in a city that won't sit still, it's even easier to lose it when you're the one sitting still.

Co-sponsored by the Department of Latino Studies, the Department of Radio-Television-Film, and the Department of Rhetoric and Writing
With help from the Division of Campus and Community Engagement
